

Kamrup (Metro)

Bhabesh Das of Satgaon, Kamrup (Metro) has a story which is inspiring.

Bhabesh Das who owns dry land was mostly dependent on rain to cultivate his agricultural land. Episodes of severe water shortage also led other farmers of his region to struggle while farming. After the implementation of PMKSY in Kamrup Metro, it was Bhabesh, who went to embrace the government's initiative and started farming. With Solar Pump installed in his farm land, Bhabesh could now supply adequate water to irrigate his farm. And, with this, Bhabesh is now a successful farmer cultivating vegetables and reaping the benefit in his 15 bighas land. He cultivates rice and vegetables like Ladies finger, pumpkin, mustard, ridge gourd and sweet potato.

But, his story doesn't end here. He started encouraging other farmers to apply for the PMKSY scheme. And now, almost all the farmers of his region are equipped with the modern technology implemented by the government for the upliftment of farmers.

Irrigation Department
26.11.2021 11:27 AM
26.25658, 91.6535
Altitude: 36m
7M44+P5X, Pacharia Dalar Pathar, Assam
781101

Paneswar Kalita who hails from the village Bonmoja, Kamrup (Metro) is yet another successful farmer of his region. His dedication and devotion towards agriculture is a pure example of his success. Despite several challenges in irrigating his dry land, Paneswar didn't lose hope. Agriculture being the only source of income and livelihood, Paneswar manually watered his farm and depended mostly on rainfed cultivation.

After PMKSY was launched in his village, Paneswar immediately applied for the scheme. As he says, "PMKSY scheme turned out to be a turning point in my life, it seems as if my dream has come true".

With the electrical tube installed, Paneswar now irrigates mustard, rice and other Vegetables in his 20 bighas of land and considers himself a proud farmer. His cultivation produces around 1400 kg of rice per bigha, the triple of what he used to produce earlier and his income has tripled as well. He is all praise for the PMKSY scheme and urges other farmers to adopt the scheme.

“ BY THE TIME THE COUNTRY CELEBRATES ITS 75TH INDEPENDENCE ANNIVERSARY IN 2022, FARMERS' INCOME WILL HAVE DOUBLED. THIS IS MY DREAM ”

Shri Narendra Modi
Hon'ble Prime Minister of India